THE WHITNEY

Everyone is out to win in the violin contest in "Fiddlers Three," coming tomorrow night to the Whitney. It is a big event for both master and pupil to win the prize for superiority of instrument and playing.

Among the contestants are the pupil of a noted violin-maker and a stranger, the violin-maker's daughter's lover. The rivalry for the grand prize, and also for the beautiful girl, is keen between these two. Before the contest the master himself, becomes convinced of the superiority of the stranger's instrument and just before the contest the violins are changed in their cases. Almost as soon as this has been done some one mysteriously changes them back again and the girl marries the one she loves.

In "39 East," coming to the Whitney next Thursday evening, Constance Binney has the role of a western girl who comes to New York to win fame and fortune as a singer. Stopping at "39 East," a New York boarding house, she meets a variety of characters from numerous gossips to Napoleon Gibbs, the scion of a wealthy family. Their courtship begis the first morning at the breakfast table and is carried on in spite of the interferring gossips.

The Screen

THE MAJESTIC

Comedy is rampant in Marguerite Clark's new Paramount picture, "Girls," to be shown again today at the Majestic. One of the delightful situations in the film arises when a young lawyer, who has fallen in love with the pretty president of a man-haters club, calls to find over her door the sign, "No man shall cross this threshold."

Keeping in mind the old saying, "Faint heart never won fair lady," he enters her window, gaining admission without crossing the threshold. This, however, does not bring the result intended. It is only after the other members of the man-hating club have deserted their fair president that he accidently wins her consent to be his bride.

"Fatty" Arbuckle rescues beauty in distress in "Back Stage," an additional attraction. When he forcibly ejects a villian from the theater he starts a train of circumstances that give him plenty of opportunities to win laughs.

THE ARCADE

In "The Brat," which will be shown today on a return engagement at the Arcade, Nazimova has many opportunities to show her ability. This feature is distinguished from her other pictures and stands out as one of the brightest spots in her career.

Pauline Frederick in "The Peace of Roaring River" will be presented Wednesday and Thursday.

Engineering News

Only junior and seniors are entitled to wear the corduroys in the engineering college. This year the juniors will wear the light colored trousers and the seniors the dark colored ones.

"The Products and Their Utilization in Highway Construction and the Industries," is the topic of an illustrated lecture to be given by Philip P. Sharples, chief chemist and manager of the tarvia department of the Barret company, in connection with the highway course. The lecture will be delivered at 7:30 o'clock Thursday, Nov. 20, in room 349 of the Engineering building. The public is invited to hear Mr. Sharples.

Preparations for the first Camp Davis smoker which will be held at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday, Nov. 25, in the Michigan Union, are well under way. It is planned to have the Camp Davis quartette present and to have the meeting hold a sing similar to the ones held at Camp Davis. It is desired that members bring their musical instruments. Prof. Henry E. Riggs and Prof. Clarence T. Johnston will speak at the reunion.

The J-Hop committee will be elected next Thursday from the nominations which were made at the junior class meeting of the engineering college. Four of the eight nominated will be chosen for the committee. A chairman will be elected by double-checking the name of the man wanted for chairman. The election will be from 8 to 9 o'clock in the halls of the Engineering building.

All sophomore classes of the engineering college will be excused at the 9 o'clock hour Tuesday, Nov. 18, so that the men can attend the class meeting to be held in room 348 of the Engineering building. A captain for the fall games will be elected. Lieut. Robert Arthur will talk on military training, and a representative of the honor committee will explain the honor system.

RADIO LICENSE CAUSES ANXIETY

S. W. Edwards, district radio inspector in Detroit, has caused some anxiety to the engineering faculty, due to his not answering many letters applying for a license for the University wireless station.

Application was made for an experimental license, the same privilege as Michigan enjoyed with the other large universities before we entered the war. An amateur license was received but was returned by the faculty, with another application. Last week, however, a definite refusal was obtained from Mr. Edwards and the matter has been taken up with Washington officials, it being the aim of some of the faculty to apply through Congress, if necessary, to obtain the desired lights.

Station Operated

Assistants have been appointed to operate the station certain nights of the week and to conduct experimental work along radio lines.

Last week the station was used for the purpose of direct communication for the first time since the United States declared war. The operator in charge asked the navy station at Detroit if it was permissible to operate the station if application for a license had been made. The reply was affirmative so that operation may be continued until the matter has been definitely settled.

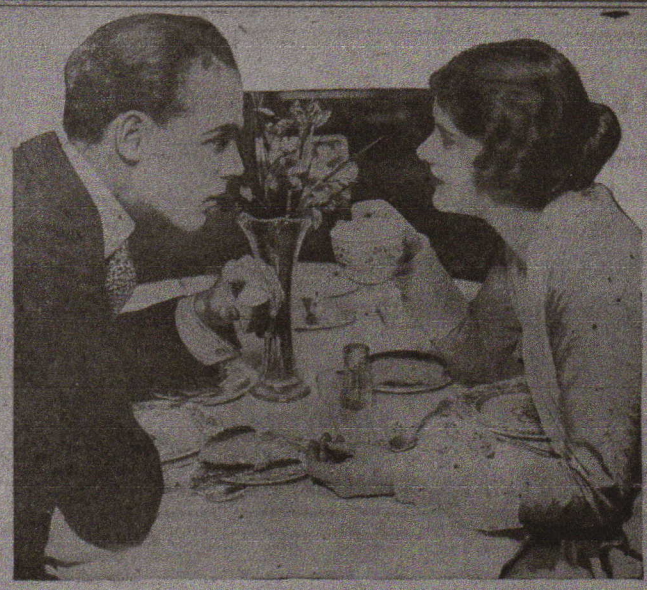

Improvements Planned

The army signal corps in giving its course in communication is offering great opportunities for experimental and research work in both wireless telegraph and telephone work. Sixty tons of the latest signal corps equipment is expected, several tons having already arrived.

Plans for a tower aerial support and the Board of Regents' sanction of an appropriation for the rebuilding of the station promises to place the University in the front rank with others prominent in radio engineering.

The apparatus is located in room 103 of the Engineering building, and visitors are welcome at the station at any time during the hours mentioned.

Due to the fact that the license is still pending, the transmitting set is not in operation, and the receiving equipment is only temporarily installed.

The affair was the second of a series of dances to be given for first year girls, the aim being to get the girls better acquainted.
