AMERICA IS NOW HOPE OF WORLD, DECLARES FINLEY

NEW YORK EDITOR GIVES ADDRESS AT UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION

SAYS OBSOLETE POLICY OF ISOLATION MUST END

Washington, If Alive, Would Support New Internationalism, Asserts Speaker

Nations of the world are today looking toward the United States for leadership in international affairs, and unless her traditional policy of isolation is permanently put aside, America will not meet the confidence placed in her, declared John Huston Finley, former president of the New York State university and present associate editor of the New York Times, in his address on "International Entanglements" given at the University convocation services at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Hill auditorium.

"On Horizon of All Hope"

"America is on the horizon of every hope that Europe and the nations of the Near East have," Dr. Finley said. "During the last few years I have seen the nose looking out of the eyes of hundreds of thousands, especially among the younger generation.

"To live permanently is an anchor. He is feeble. Our destiny is interwoven with that of the nations of the rest of the world; our salvation lies with them. Only those who would narrow our sympathy would revert to the old system of isolation.

"If Washington were living today," the speaker said, "he would want us to support a permanent court of international justice. While standing as firmly as ever against entangling alliances with individual nations, he would want America to join in an association of nations for the establishment of a new order of world relations."

Conference an Achievement

Dr. Finley emphasized the importance of the accomplishments of the Armament conference and the treaty for the scrapping of battleships. "The Washington conference lifts the name of Washington to a higher plane," he said.

He discussed the growing sense of international interdependence and the need for "unifying arrangements woven by understanding," which must replace the old suspicion. Entanglements, hatreds and suspicions are still keeping nations apart though the guns are silent and the trenches are being filled, he declared. He told of a trip he recently made from Ireland through Europe to the frontiers of Russia and cited many instances from his experience to show that "means of suspicion, antipathy and hate" still exist and are a factor to be considered in the solution of world problems.

The speaker took a stand against cancellation of the debts owed the United States by the allies and suggested that the interest from the debts be used toward educating children who have been thrown on public support by the world conflict.

Have Chance for Service

While the Americans of Washington's time had a great opportunity for service in worthy causes it is a great privilege to be living in a new world with its new responsibilities and opportunities, as we are today, Dr. Finley remarked.

"The world moves on," he said in conclusion. "It does so because America is serving Washington's ideals on to a world horizon."

In presenting Dr. Finley, President Marion L. Burton referred to his years of service as an educator and publicist.

The convocation was opened by an organ number, "Festival Prelude," played by Earl V. Moore, of the School of Music. Invocation was offered by Rev. R. Edward Sayles. The Varsity Glee club under the direction of Frank L. Thomas, of the School of Music, sang the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Gounod's "Faust." The club was called back for an encore number before President Burton rose to introduce the speaker.

At the conclusion of the address the audience sang one stanza of "America," which was followed by the benediction. The organ postlude, "March in C," by Cummings, was played by Mr. Moore.

Deans of the various colleges were seated on the stage in academic costume, and seats were reserved for faculty members.

MONUMENT HONORS MEMORY AND WORK OF HENRY C. ADAMS

A monument was erected to the memory of the late Prof. Henry Carter Adams by his colleagues of the ministry of communications of the republic of China, at his burial place in Forest Hill cemetery yesterday afternoon. More than 100 people stood in a driving rain at the grave of Professor Adams to witness the ceremony. Nearly all the Chinese students in the University were among the observers.

The ceremony consisted of addresses by Y. Chen, president of the Chinese Students club, and Mr. Chang, who is a delegate to the Arms conference at Washington. Mr. Chang's address expressed the deep appreciation of the Chinese for Professor Adams' endeavors. The conclusion of the address consisted of reading the inscription on the monument in both Chinese and English, which briefly summed up the work of Professor Adams in helping to improve the economic conditions of railway operations in China.

The monument is typically Chinese, the pedestal being a marble representation of the Sacred Tortoise of China with the inscription slab standing perpendicular on its back. The inscription on the front of the slab is in Chinese, while on the back is a translation of it into English. This is no dragon head at the top of the slab, the head being a relic of the Empire days. The lot was decorated with boxwood shrubs, many flowers, and funeral memorial wreaths.

Conference Radio Plan Successful In Latest Tests

During the past week the Western Conference Radio News service, an organization that connects several of the Big Ten newspapers with wireless news service, has carried on tests which have proven the organization successful. News has been satisfactorily transferred for the first time since the start of the service at the beginning of the current school year.

The Western Conference Radio News service is composed of six colleges, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Purdue, and Chicago. On every Monday night during the past semester these colleges have forwarded all important news of the week and day to Wisconsin, the central station, from where it has been broadcasted at midnight to the other colleges. The news transfer in this way has been in several cases much more rapid than was ever possible over the Western Union wires.

At the meeting of Western Conference newspaper editors in May the Radio service received its first official support and a committee with L. Armstrong Kern, '22, at its head was appointed to investigate and control such a service. With the beginning of the current school year, the service received its first issue, which were comparatively successful. Continued experiments have brought it to its present efficiency.

LIBRARY DISPLAYS TROPHIES OF WAR

Relics of the World War, loaned by students and faculty men who saw service, have been placed on exhibit in the lower corridor of the general library. The most interesting case is the center in the south end of the corridor, which is the property of Harold Furlong, '20M. In addition to pictures of the burial of the unknown soldier, there are five medals with which Furlong has been decorated: The Congressional Medal of Honor, the Victory Medal, Croix de Guerre with two palms, the medal of the Legion of Honor and the Italian War Cross.

Other cases contain maps used on the firing lines, official dispatches, including one announcing the armistice, pieces of equipment picked up in German territory, and other miscellaneous articles. Included in one case is an Army edition of the Chicago Tribune, published in Paris.

Rotarians and their sons filled the dining room of the Chamber of Commerce hotel, formerly the Catalpa inn, at the annual fathers-sons' banquet of the Rotary club, which took place last night.

IRISH FACTIONS AT FINAL MOMENT COME TO ACCORD

PEACE AGREEMENT REACHED WITH DRAMATIC SUDDENNESS BY ARD SHEIS

NO ELECTION WILL NOW BE HELD FOR 3 MONTHS

Constitution, by Present Arrangement, Also to Go Before People for Vote

(By Associated Press)

Dublin, Feb. 22. — With dramatic suddenness a peace agreement was reached at the eleventh hour between free state and republican leaders at the national Sinn Fein convention today, and the huge gathering of delegates, impatient that any delay might endanger the treaty with Great Britain, gave it unanimous approval and adjourned for three months. The general feeling was that in preserving intact the party organization something like a miracle had been worked.

Issue Now Broadened

The net result of the two days' meeting of the Ard Sheis was to insure that no election could be held in Ireland for the next three months, and when it is held the issue will not simply be for or against the treaty, but to determine the judgement of the Irish people on the actual terms of a constitution at which the treaty will be embodied.

All the objections to the treaty raised on the floor today after Eamon de Valera had announced its terms emanated from prominent republicans.

De Valera Overruled

In spite of Mr. De Valera's assurances that he had carefully considered every point, and was quite satisfied with Arthur Griffith's emphatic declaration that no election should be forced on the country for the next three months, the republicans decided to hold a meeting this evening in the mansion house to insist upon clarifying certain points which they considered dubious.

J-Hop Orchestra To Play At Prom

Waring's "Pennsylvanians" of State college, who were one of the assisting orchestras at the 1921 J-Hop, will furnish the music at the Sophomore Prom on March 31, according to an announcement made by the Prom committee last night.

Dancing at the Prom will begin at 9 o'clock and continue until 2 o'clock. A novel program is also promised by the committee, the substance of which has not yet been made known.

Tickets will be distributed in a manner similar to that used in apportioning J-Hop tickets. Sophomores will be given preference over members of other classes, and tickets will be furnished only after applications have been submitted. Announcement of the opening of the ticket sale will appear at a later date.

LARGE AUDIENCE SEES "THEODORA"

More than 2,000 people were present to greet the first performance of "Theodora," the film shown last night in Hill auditorium under the auspices of the Veterans' memorial committee to furnish and equip the Union reading room.

While the movie is under the direction of men picked from the three ex-service men's organizations, every cent is to be turned over to the fund for making the Union reading room a completed part of the Union. George Lott, '22, who is in charge of the entertainment, gave a short talk in which he explained the purpose of the committee. "This is the third of a series of entertainments which we have been giving with the same end in view," said Lott, "and we are not going to quit until in the Union second floor hall is one of the finest reading rooms in the country."

Carl Boswell, '24, gave several solos during one of the intermissions.

OFFER NEW PLAN TO RAISE BONUS

House Committee Would Levy General Tax on Manufacturers and Wholesalers

NO ACTION EXPECTED FOR TWO WEEKS BY LEADERS

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Feb. 22.—The financing of the soldiers' bonus by means of a manufacturers or wholesalers tax, was described in a general sort of way at two sessions of the house ways and means committee dealing with this subject.

No Disposition to Speed

It was announced that there would be no further session until Friday, and members indicated that there was no disposition to hurry a decision.

Representative Longworth, of Ohio, ranking member of the special committee, said it was his judgment that the general manufacturers' and wholesalers' tax similar to that enforced in Canada would be recommended.

Lower Than in Canada

He thought the rates would be lower than those in Canada, as experts had estimated that the Canadian rates put in force in this country would yield $250,000,000 a year, or more than $200,000,000 in excess of the sum estimated to be needed to finance the cash payment to the former service men.

Mr. Longworth said he did not think the bonus bill would be ready for the house this week or next.

Three Composers Listed On Organ Program Today

Works of Bach, Guilmant, and J. H. Rogers will comprise Earl V. Moore's program at the next Twilight organ recital at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon in Hill auditorium.

Mr. Moore has prepared brief analytical notes regarding the numbers which are to be performed. Bach's Prelude in D major will open the program. The organist speaks of it as follows: "The design of this masterly prelude was no doubt suggested by the style of overtures developed at Paris by J. B. Lully, who died two years after Bach's birth. The solid, stately introduction and combination are balanced against and contrasted with the fluent and more lyric middle section."

"Lamento" and "Prayer and Cradle Song" by Guilmant are two small pieces in which "the real genius of Guilmant comes to light. The clarity with which he treats his thematic gems gives manifold pleasure."

The Rogers Sonata in E minor, played entire, will conclude the program. Larger forms of composition for the organ are more and more claiming the attention of American composers, and the successful essays are not so scarce as might be expected. American organ sonatas are, in truth, sonatas for American organs, that is, breadth of treatment is fused with striking changes of color effects, due to the superior mechanism of American instruments. Mr. Rogers' songs have won him deserved recognition."

Joe Parker to Have New Cafe

Joe Parker will open a new cafe in the basement of the Cornwell block, on the corner of East Huron street and Fourth avenue, March 1. The basement will be remodeled and 32 of the old table tops with carved initials dating from 1835-1907, are to be imbedded in the ceiling.

$50,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE IN BOOK STORE

BARTHELL, ON STATE STREET, SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS IN CONFLAGRATION

WATER PENETRATES TO TAILOR SHOP BELOW

Large Crowd Watches Owner Save Valuable Papers and Returns to Safety

Fire, estimated to have caused more than $50,000 damage, broke out last night in the Barthell upstairs book store at 336 S. State street. The fire is thought to have broken out at a spot near the center of the building from which it rapidly made its way to other parts of the store.

Shortly after 5:30 o'clock J. A. Brahm, of the Campus Lunch company, noticed a group of students in front of the restaurant. On going out to investigate the excitement, he saw smoke pouring from the second story above, and at once turned in the alarm, to which the fire department immediately responded. The building by this time was filled with smoke.

Save Papers

Immediate attempts were then made to secure a number of valuable papers in the Woolfolk Tailoring shop, which were finally brought to safety. Shortly afterwards C. E. Barthell, owner of the book store, above the shop, succeeded in bringing to safety from the shop, full of flames, water, and smoke, his important business papers.

The damage to the Woolfolk Tailoring company is due wholly to the water which poured in streams from the floor above, the fire not penetrating through to the floor below except in one small spot. The damage, as approximated by Mr. Meyers, employe, is more than $50,000. Mr. Meyers said he thought that there was probably no more than $25,000 of insurance to cover the loss. Every bit of the stock was apparently damaged by the water.

The majority of the damage to the Barthell book store was done to the back part of the store. Here all the books were damaged at least by water, and some by fire also. Throughout the store there were only a few scattering books which were saved from the water by waterproof bookcases. Mr. Barthell said that he carried, if any insurance, none to cover the heavy loss to his books which he has been collecting for 23 years.

Dey's Studio Damaged

Mr. Dey, owner of the Dey studio on the second floor across the hall from the Barthell book store, estimated the loss to pictures in the mounting room of his studio due to water which poured through from the third floor as $500. He said he carried enough insurance to cover the entire loss. Water which poured into the Slater bookstore caused considerable damage to stock and fixtures.

The fire was extinguished by 9:40 o'clock, by which time six enormous streams had gathered on State street, extending across the street upon the campus. As soon as the fire was under control students and firemen hustled themselves by trying to save as much of the stock of the bookstore and the tailor shop as possible.
