Ohio State Meets Chicago In March Toward Big Ten Championship

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The big three of the Big Ten gridiron title struggle, Minnesota, Ohio State and Michigan, charge out tomorrow to defend their positions, and there is nothing in the evidence to indicate they shouldn't succeed.

The Gophers, who haven't dropped a decision since the final game of the 1932 season when Michigan won, 3 to 0 on Harry Newman's field goal, apparently face the toughest job of the trio in meeting Iowa at Iowa City. The Hawkeyes were held to a 6-6 tie by Indiana last week, but the field was muddy and with a dry track, Oze Simmons, Dick Crayne and the rest of the Iowa backs may be able to cause Minnesota some inconvenience at least.

Gophers Are Favored

Minnesota, which has gathered momentum with each game this season, has earned the right to be called the favorite, and anything but a Gopher victory would be an upset. Minnesota's long defenless span covers 21 games, including four ties in 1933.

Ohio State, its dream of national championship honors shattered in a few mad minutes by Notre Dame last week, is expected to bounce back at the expense of Chicago's brave little band. On form, the Buckeyes figure up as definitely superior, unless Coach Francis Schmidt's aggregation has failed to recover from last week's shock.

The Maroons, however, fortified by two weeks of practice for the test, will be at their best form of the season. Coach Clark Shaughnessy has had ample time to augment his offense by the use of Omar Fareed as a forward passer, giving the opposition someone beside Jay Berwanger to watch.

Sharing attention with the Minnesota-Iowa battle, Northwestern and Notre Dame will have it out again at South Bend. The Irish, of course, will be favored, but a letdown as the result of last week's heroic work at Ohio State might help the Wildcats to their first victory over Notre Dame since 1931.

Purdue and Wisconsin, neither involved in the championship battle, tangle at Madison, while Indiana engages in a little intersectional business at Maryland.

Hamtramck Back May Fill Renner's Shoes Next Year

By RICHARD SIDDER

Passing has always been an integral part of the Michigan grid system, so far-sighted observers are looking around for talent to replace Captain Bill Renner on next year's team. At present Johnny Smithers seems to have the inside track, but if someone else could do the passing, Johnny's fine blocking would be made available.

For the past week the physical education freshmen have been ruining Illinois plays against the Varsity and one man, Alex Lolko, has stood out for his fine passing and all-around play.

All-Around Player

According to Wally Weber he can do everything well. He is a good punter, an excellent blocker, an able pass receiver, a very fine passer and his high knee action and change of pace marks him as a bad man to bring down. He can play at any backfield post or at end and still feel perfectly at home. When questioned as to whether he preferred any particular position he answered "As long as it's football, I don't care where they put me."

Alex is a product of Hamtramck high school in suburban Detroit where he was coached by Hal Shields, one of the leading high school coaches in the country. In his Junior year he was named as a flanker on the All-State team.

All-State in 1934

The following season found a dearth of backfield material at Hamtramck, so Lolko volunteered to try his hand at the halfback post. As a result of his stellar play, which brought his team the city championship, Alex was again selected to an All-State post this time in the backfield.

It is true that men who flash a considerable amount of ability in the fall are liable to fade out or be shoved into obscurity by better players during spring practice and in their sophomore year, but it is the guess of most people who have seen Lolko in action that some day he will be taking his place in the Varsity lineup, and many see an All-American in the making in this shy Polish lad.

MAY GO TO COLUMBUS

If fund-raising plans succeed, the Illinois band of 180 pieces will be transported to Columbus for the Ohio State game Nov. 16. It is said to be ten years since the Illini musicians marched in the Buckeye capital.

Tennis Coach Names 10 Men For '36 Squad

Coach John Johnstone named his permanent varsity and freshman tennis squad roster Monday. The varsity squad is composed of 10 men, four of whom were members of the freshman squad last year. Six men make up the present freshman squad.

Those named on the Varsity squad by Coach Johnstone are Leonard Verdier, Jack Thom, Mischa Barowski, Ted Fraser, Captain Howie Kahn, Ted Rodriguez, Jarvis Dean, Miller Sherwood, Cecil Young, and Jesse Flick. Kahn, Rodriguez, Dean, and Sherwood were letter men last year. Thom, Barowski, Fraser, and Verdier are sophomores, all of whom won their numerals on the freshman team last year.

Those comprising the freshman squad are: Eddie Payne, Grand Rapids; Art Bullock, Grand Rapids; Bill Mills, Grosse Pointe; Sam Low, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Bill Smith, Muskegon; and Ed. Morris, Youngstown, O. Coach John Johnstone expressed the opinion that this year's squad of yearlings is the most promising he has had in a number of years.

Coach Johnstone has been drilling his men daily in the Intramural Gym. The practice sessions will continue all this winter in preparation for a stiff campaign next spring.

Theta Chi defeated Phi Beta Delta in a hotly contested speedball game Thursday afternoon to annex the favored position in the tourney. Scoring sprees in the second and final periods enabled Theta Chi to emerge on the long end of a 13-8 score. Nine tallies were made from penalty kicks and the victors obtained six of them with an accurate display of booting. Bill Wells was the high scorer with five points as he and Rod and Doc Howell starred for the winners. Herman Fishman and Leonard Meidman were best for the losers.

Marquette Is Favored Over Spartan Team

All Hilltopper Regulars In Good Condition For Tilt Before Large Crowd

EAST LANSING, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The Marquette University football team, that has forward passed its way to victory over everything it has met this season, arrives today for Saturday's homecoming game with the Spartans of Michigan State.

It was a defiant group of Spartans that found itself on the short end of the odds for the games that will dedicate Macklin Field before a capacity crowd of 20,000 spectators.

They clicked in high gear at last nights' heavy duty practice, running accurate forward passes across the field as they prepared to "fight fire with fire."

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 8.—(AP)—A serious, confident squad of 34 Marquette gridmen rolled eastward today for Saturday's game with Michigan State, the season's first real test of Marquette's calibre.

The squad's physical condition was better than had been expected. All regulars were in uniform for a last home practice before departure last night. Coach Frank J. Murray planned a brief drill session at East Lansing today.

Roger Lumb, regular tackle, and Myles Reif, veteran center, who had been on the training table earlier in the week, went through a long dummy scrimmage with others yesterday. Instead of the usual gayety, the squad was composed and drilled sternly, cognizant that for the first time this season its undefeated and untied record really was at stake.

After Wednesday's perfect practice, the squad presented a contrast in handling new defensive assignments. Some seemed uncertain of their tasks, but this caused no undue worry, the condition being attributed to pre-game tenseness.

I-M OPEN SATURDAY

The Intramural Building will be open Saturday night from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. for members and guests of the Outing Club, Women's Physical Education Club, Badminton Club, Men's Physical Education Club, and Intramural Extension Class. The regular fee will be charged.

Tradition Will Play Big Part In Naming Victor Of Game Today

By FRED BEUSSER

Tradition versus relative ability will be the topic of today's grid battle between Illinois and Michigan in the opinion of many of the country's leading football experts.

Michigan and Illinois have come to recognize in one another rivals whose strength can never be accurately predicted.

Scrappy, fight Illinois teams that haven't done a thing all year make it a practice to attack strong Michigan teams with a ferocious cocksureness which has more than once caused the Wolverines considerable embarassment.

In the same manner, Michigan teams have entered games against the Zuppke men with their famed prayers conceded as the only possible weapon with which they could escape overwhelming slaughter.

Watch 'Flea Flicker'

Today Illinois' biggest threat lies in the tradition which has grown up around Illinois-Michigan games. Despite the vaunted Illini attack with its spread and its Flea Flicker, despite the redoubtable Les Lindberg who will do the quarterbacking, despite the two senior tackles Arvo Arvilla and Captain Chuck Gilbraith, Illinois has little chance of beating Michigan according to many experienced observers.

Bob Zuppke, the crafty mentor who has been guiding the gridiron destinies of Illini teams for a good many years, has developed a habit of placing so much emphasis on his strong points that few teams have been able to observe his weak ones. This year Zup has ballyhooed his fast, light team and once again warned opponents of the possibilities of the Flea Flicker.

But Zup hasn't said much or anything about his defense, and the reason is that so far this season the Illini haven't had any.

Defense Weak

The nation's fraternity of sports writers joined together in acclaiming the Illini one of the country's leading teams when Zuppke took his squad out to the coast to shellack a heavy Southern California eleven, 19-0.

But after every other team on the coast had beaten the Trojans, the sports writers began to recollect that Illinois beat Southern California on breaks, two blocked punts to be specific.

Illinois then proceeded to drop its Conference opener to Iowa, 19-0. But the interesting fact is that the Hawks in addition to three touchdowns made 233 yards and 12 first downs by rushing. Last week a Northwestern team which has not been an offensive powerhouse, beat the Zuppke men, 10-2, and in so doing made 253 yards and 14 first downs from scrimmage.

Today it is the defense which is Zuppke's weak point. Michigan has a capable offense that ought to keep the Illini busy all afternoon. Willie Les Lindberg is a dangerous back and will be a constant threat he can hardly be considered in the same category as Al Barabas and Bill Kurlish, both of whom the Wolverines have managed to subdue.

CALL FROSH CAGEMEN

All candidates for the freshman basketball squad will report to Waterman Gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Players should bring their own equipment.

Don Cossack Russian Chorus
SERGE JAROFF, Conductor
Monday, Nov. 11, at 8:15 P. M.
HILL AUDITORIUM

THE DON COSSACK RUSSIAN MALE CHORUS is unique, from the standpoints both of origin and of accomplishment. Prisoners of war when the Russian Imperial forces were overcome, they "whiled away their time" in a prison camp by singing simple choral music. Then under the magnetic influence of their diminutive but dynamic leader, SERGE JAROFF, they undertook more serious music. Without music books or instruments, they attempted to substitute for an army band. They attracted the attention of their captors and were extended some few courtesies. After their release they could not return to their native land because they had been expatriated. As a group they did "church singing" in one of the Balkan cathedrals and soon were in demand for concerts. Their tours spread throughout central Europe with ever-increasing enthusiasm. Their short trips to America on several occasions have been in the nature of triumphal marches. Their programs of sacred music, folk tunes, and stirring soldier songs of the "Cossacks on the March," appeal to the discriminating musician as well as to the general public.

Old Rivalries Top Big Ten Football Card

50,000 Expected To See Notre Dame And U.S.C. Tangle On Gridiron

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Capacity crowds are expected to fill the football stadia of the Mid-West this afternoon when the Big Ten season draws to a close and Notre Dame ends its most successful year since the Rockne era.

With weather conditions favorable, at least 70,000 will fill the huge Michigan Bowl to see the 32nd meeting of this section's greatest rivals, Michigan and Ohio State. The Buckeyes are overwhelming favorites to win and its all likihood tie Minnesota for the conference title. However, Coach Harry Kipke has his charges primed for the affair and after Ohio's one touchdown defeat of Illinois may pull one of the year's biggest upsets.

Ramblers Meet Trojans

Notre Dame plays host to Southern California at South Bend and the largest turnout in the history of the Irish stadium is expected to see the encounter. The Trojans have come along rapidly lately and have hopes of adding one more defeat to a splendid Notre Dame record. It is the 10th clash between the Irish and Trojans and upwards of 50,000 will be there.

Games between traditional rivals feature the Mid-West card, a fact that has somewhat complicated the dopesters' predictions. Next in importance perhaps, due to its bearing on the outcome of the Western Conference race, is the Minnesota-Wisconsin battle at Minneapolis. A scant few hold out hopes of a Badger win although Wisconsin's defeat of Purdue early in the month proved that "Doc" Spears can put a good team on the field. A win for the Gophers will clinch at least a tie for its second consecutive conference championship and perhaps enable them to claim another national title.

"Old Oaken Bucket" Rival

Clark Shaughnessey's Maroons invade Urbana to meet the Fighting Illini of Professor Zuppke and are the under dogs in a battle that can decide no title race but only provide much satisfaction to backers of the winning eleven.

The other two conference games, Purdue-Indiana and Iowa-Northwestern, round out the Mid-West's schedule of important games. The Hawkeyes and Wildcats rate about on even terms.

"The Old Oaken Bucket" comes up for discussion at Bloomington where the Purdue Boilermakers seek to revenge last year's unexpected defeat at the hands of the Hoosiers. Although favorites, Purdue fears Indiana may pull another surprise and is taking precautions to insure victory.

New Pivot Rule Change Will Aid Townsend's Play

John Townsend, sophomore star around whom Coach Franklin Cappon is building the 1931-32 edition of the Michigan basketball team, is confident that the new change in the pivot rule has made him more effective.

As Earl, the elder of the Townsend brothers and forward on the Varsity five, puts it, "The new rule requires plenty of passing ability and capable ball handling and John is tops in both of these departments."

"The really big boys," John is only 6 feet 4 inches tall, "are going to have plenty of trouble getting rid of the ball around the foul circle. It's becoming harder and harder to just hand the ball to a cutting player. You've got to pass it now and usually you have to pass it backwards."

Leroy Edwards, Kentucky's sophomore ace who was chosen as All-American center last year and who was a teammate of both of the brothers at Tech High School in Indianapolis, dropped out of school this year. Both John and Earl feel that the new rule had a real effect on his decision. Edwards was a pivot man of the old school and had to have time to jockey position under the basket. Once settled, his great heighth and weight made him a hard man to stop. The new revision of the three-second rule would have made it very hard for him to play this type of ball this year.

Jim Seward, the 6 foot 8 inch Purdue center, who is an old rival of the Townsends, is going to be a lot easier to handle this year John thinks. Like Bob Riegel of Illinois, Fred Fechtman of Indiana, and Jesse MacAnally of Northwestern, he isn't quite clever enough with the ball to be used to full advantage without plenty of opportunity to jockey for position. Incidently, MacAnally will not be with the Wildcats for he has dropped out of school this year.

The Michigan basketball team is on its way up John thinks, and fans need no longer feel that the Wolverines are inferior to other Big Ten quintets. The new changes have really helped Cappon a lot. George Rudness is going to get a real opportunity to use his speed this year and ball handlers like Capt. Chelso Tomaeno and Earl Meyers are to find the going easier.

Bears, Indians Battle For Rose Bowl Bid Today

Both Thornhill, Allison Express Willingness To Meet Any Eleven

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Willingness to take on any football team in the country if they win the western Rose Bowl bid was expressed by rival coaches today as California and Stanford neared their "big game" tomorrow at Palo Alto.

The first official disclosure that parties which may be the most interested hold no brief for procedure which always has called for a visiting Rose Bowl contender from east of the Mississippi River, was made by Coaches Leonard (Stub) Allison of California and Claude (Tiny) Thornhill of Stanford.

The field, so far as the coaches are concerned, is thrown wide open. It can be either of the two strong Texas universities, Southern Methodist or Texas Christian, as well as the presently unbeaten Dartmouth team.

Coach Allison, unwilling to talk of the New Year's Day classic while preparing his unbeaten Bears for the season's most important game, yielded to say:

"If we're lucky enough to get to the Rose Bowl, we don't care which team we play. The location of the school won't mean a thing."

The names of Ed. Phillips and Lilburne Oehs, right half backs for the Freshman and Phys. Ed. teams were inadvertently omitted from the starting lineups in yesterday's issue of The Daily.

Dick Degener, World's Greatest Diver, Joins Benedictine Ranks

By GEORGE J. ANDROS

The next public appearance of the world's greatest diver of all time—at the huge gala to be held Friday, December 13th at the Intramural pool—will be his first as a married man.

Dick Degener, former Michigan Varsity star and now engaged in the tailoring craft over on William St., is scheduled to repeat the fatal words late today.

The baby-faced blond, who was dubbed "The Champ" by Coach Matt Mann before graduation took him from the Wolverine ranks in 1934, earned the title of the greatest diver of all time in the National A. A. U. indoor championships at New York last winter when he piled up a record total of 180.68 points from the three-meter board.

DEGENER

No other diver has ever come close to annexing that many points in 10 dives.

Degener's record over a period of four years includes 12 national championships—two of them in intercollegiate competition and the remaining number in the indoor and outdoor meets of the National A.A.U. In each of the past three years, Dick has captured three out of the four A.A.U. titles, including three-meter board, indoors and outdoors; one-meter or low-board indoors, and the high or 10-meter platform outdoors. He has yet to lose a three-meter title indoors, winning in his first attempt in 1932 and repeating every season since.

Starting his active career as a spring-board performer at the age of 13, Degener has been diving for 10 years. He hopes to climax his string of victories with a win in next summer's Olympic games at Berlin. He placed third at Los Angeles in 1932.

Before coming to Michigan to win two Western Conference and two National Collegiate titles, Dick was twice Michigan high school champion from Detroit Central and won the National Interscholastic crown his last year.

America's diving strength is favored to bring the Olympic swimming championship back from Japan, but Degener is firm in his belief that the United States swimmers could win without the aid of their divers. "The Nipponese spring-board performers will furnish a threat," the favorite for the next championship stated, "only if they improve as much in the next year as they have in the last three. The Japanese are too mechanical, possessing good acrobatic technique but no natural grace."

I-M Sports

Theta Chi overwhelmed Delta Upsilon yesterday to revenge last year's defeat and capture the interfraternity speedball championship by outscoring their opponents, 16-3. After the first period in which the ultimate victors scored five points while holding their opponents scoreless, the final issue was never in doubt.

Bill Wells tallied seven points to lead the individual scorers.
