The Staff Of The J-Hop Extra

Managing Editor THOMAS H. KLEENE
Associate Editor JOHN J. FLAHERTY
Associate Editor THOMAS E. GROEHN

J-Hop Issue Editor THOMAS H. KLEENE

ASSISTANTS: Clinton B. Conger, Arnold S. Daniels, Joseph S. Mattes, Charlotte D. Rueger, Guy M. Whipple, Jr.

Business Manager GEORGE H. ATHERTON
Credit Manager JOSEPH A. ROTHBARD

J-Hop Issue Bus. Mgr. WILLIAM G. BARNDT

J-Hop Issue Publication Mgr. Lyman Bittman
J-Hop Issue Service Mgr. Willis Tomlinson
J-Hop Issue Advertising Mgrs. Stanley Joffe, John Park, Edward Wohlgemuth.

ASSISTANTS: Donald Bronson, Herbert Falender, John Gustafson, Clayton Hepler.

Stiff Shirts And The J-Hop . . .

IF ANYBODY thought we were through carrying on our editorial battle with the farm and home editors who put out the Michigan State News at East Lansing, Mich., he's barking up a horse of another color.

It is our understanding that the J-Hop up at Lansing is not formal, if you really care to wear your own clothes. There, now, what do you know about that? The idea, it seems, is simply this: The Michigan State gentlemen who are in charge of the Hop, realizing that there was a basketball game just before the dance, figured that many of "the boys" might not be able to rush home after the game in time to get into one of them there gosh-durned store shirts that you wear to formals, so the whole business is optional. It is our guess that something very nice in a brown corduroy, with a hairy sweater, will predominate when Freddy Martin's band plays for the evening's festal doings.

Of course our readers' immediate reaction will follow these lines: Just why in the wide, wide world should anybody want to see the Michigan State basketball team play? They aren't any good, are they?

No, it is true, the Michigan State basketball team isn't much.

The secret is out. One of "the boys" on the State basketball team is a gentleman named Garlock. Mr. Garlock is also the boss of the State J-Hop.

Our Library Love Nests . . .

LET'S GO to the General Library and study, dear. While the more somber and, we will add, the more intellectual students were up to their elbows in Plato, calculus, hydraulics, and the Sino-Japanese War, the delicately muralled walls of the main reference room of our Library were softly echoing the whispered "I love you too, dearests" of the moonburned lovers who persisted in substituting "study" for their usual evenings at the Bell, the Parrot, or the Union.

Like Al Smith and the Liberty League, we must view with undisguised alarm rather than "point with pride" at what we consider the regrettable intrusion (going on with our Constitutional idea) of our rights of privacy with our books, which we love.

We are firm believers in Sex, with a capital "S." Don't get us wrong. But the young men and women who came into the Library, draped their coats and hats over ours, "read" for a minute or two, and then launched into the holding of hands and (God forbid!) even the soft humming of a few bars of "I'm in the Mood for Love," were definitely a social menace.

We attribute our 'C' in Modern Drama to the Library Lovelorns and their soft "Do you really and truly, darlings?" After all, who can hope to adequately grasp "Hedda Gabler" and Strindberg and Maeterlinck by the horns, which is where they must be grasped, when their reference room's air is perfumed with Love on the Run?

Remember, spring and bock beer and the Arboretum will soon be here. There's a time and a place for everything. Please, Love Dust advocates, let us alone when it comes time for June finals!

THE SCREEN

PREVUE OF THE MAJESTIC
"IF YOU COULD ONLY COOK"
(Saturday Through Tuesday)

"A grand-new, brand-new love team" is what the publicity items claim is in store for the J-Hoppers at the Majestic Theatre, which is bringing Herbert Marshall and Jean Arthur for a Saturday-through-Tuesday run in the romantic comedy "If You Could Only Cook."

The film concerns itself with a disgruntled millionaire who allows a strange but very attractive girl (did you have a blind date for the Hop, too?) he meets on a park bench to coax him into going with her to answer an ad for a domestic couple. He becomes butler and she a maid.

Marshall, who is already well-known as a stage and screen star, made his talking picture debut in 1929 with Jeanne Eagles in "The Letter." Miss Arthur, who in her blonde way is quite a tasty dish, once modelled for Howard Chandler Christy, the noted artist.

PREVUES OF THE MICHIGAN
"STARS OVER BROADWAY"
(Thursday Through Saturday)

"Stars Over Broadway," Warner Brothers' new musical comedy drama, which will be shown at the Michigan Theatre through Saturday for the first time locally, takes the audience behind the scenes of broadcasting stations and night clubs in what is said to be one of the most entertaining and tuneful pictures in recent months.

The romances of radio stars, the struggles and tribulations of aspiring songbirds, their rise to success and their consequent downfall is presented in "Stars Over Broadway." Action, comedy, catchy songs and the usual "spectacles" are all knit into the production.

An all-star cast, including James Melton, famed radio singer, Pat O'Brien, Jane Froman, Jean Muir, Frank McHugh, and Frank Fay lend their talents to the Michigan's musical. Melton and Miss Froman play their real-life roles of radio entertainers; O'Brien and Miss Muir play opposite each other in the romantic leads; and McHugh is cast as a song plugger. Busby Berkeley and Bobby Connolly, two of the country's better known dance directors, have their fingers prominently in the pie.

SUNDAY THROUGH WEDNESDAY
"CEILING ZERO"
(Sunday Through Wednesday)

First National Pictures is reported to have placed every facility of its Hollywood studios at the disposal of Director Howard Hawks and assigned two of the films' most competent male stars to head the list of 20-odd major players for the filming of "Ceiling Zero," a drama of the air lanes.

The players are James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, who had teamed in "Here Comes the Navy," "Devil Dogs of the Air" and "The Irish in Us." Supporting them are Stuart Erwin, eccentric comedian, June Travis, Craig Reynolds, former leading man for Mary Pickford, Carlyle Moore, Jr., and Barton McLane.

Through an arrangement, sanctioned by the U.S. Postoffice Department, the United Airlines, Inc. loaned the studio airport space and 40 airplanes, including a number of Boeings, Northrops, and Lockheed models. Equipment borrowed to authenticate the airmail and passenger service background, including innumerable dispatch forms, weather reports, weather maps, stewardess' hampers, radio earphones, head sets, mail bags, and so on, have aided the producers in preserving the utmost in cinematic veracity.

Reviewers in the metropolitan newspapers have been unstinting in their praise of "Ceiling Zero." We are taking the chance — but it seems a safe chance — of unhesitatingly recommending "Ceiling Zero" as the best of the J-Hop week-end fare.

THE FORUM

He Should Leave School . . .

To the Editor:

This is a hard luck story — without doubt the most tragic you have ever heard.

I am an Italian by birth, my father and mother coming to America when I was six years old; so I was brought up to speak the Italian language. My folks know very little English (Dad works in a restaurant specializing in Italian foods and has no need for English) and so we at home speak only in our native tongue.

Looking for a "pipe" last September, (since I had a heavy schedule, of course) I enrolled in an Italian 31 class, having already taken Italian 1 and 2 for "pipes" my freshman year.

I FLUNKED ITALIAN 31.

Why? I COULDN'T SPEAK ITALIAN AND TRANSLATE IT WELL ENOUGH TO SUIT THE INSTRUCTOR — MY FOLKS SPEAK A DIALECT!

Then, last night while I was listening to the radio and reading an Italian newspaper my father sent me, I received a long distance call from my father.

He asked me in Italian: "How did you come out in your grades, son?"

And I replied: "I got 4 B's and an E, dad."

"An E in what?"

And then I answered — in Italian: "In Italian, dad."

I am leaving school next semester.

—R.A.C., '37.

'QST' AMATEURS! RADIO BUGS! SET BUILDERS!

RADIO PARTS FOR EVERY JOB.
ALL POPULAR RADIO MAGAZINES

PURCHASE-RADIO
Phone 8696 "W8RP" 331 South Main

IF YOU WRITE WE HAVE IT . . .

A Large and Complete Stock of All Leading Makes in a Complete Range of Prices.

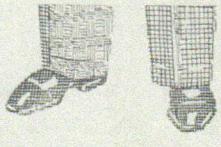

TYPEWRITERS - FOUNTAIN PENS
CORRESPONDENCE STATIONERY
STUDENT AND OFFICE SUPPLIES

O. D. MORRILL
The Stationery and Typewriter Store
Since 1908 314 SOUTH STATE ST. Phone 6615

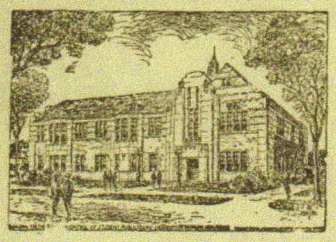

When Your Clothing Is Styled by Saffell & Bush It is CORRECT in Every Detail.

Saffell & Bush
State Street :: Ann Arbor

The Staff Of The J-Hop Extra

Managing Editor THOMAS H. KLEENE
Associate Editor JOHN J. FLAHERTY
Associate Editor THOMAS E. GROEHN

J-Hop Issue Editor THOMAS H. KLEENE

ASSISTANTS: Clinton B. Conger, Arnold S. Daniels, Joseph S. Mattes, Charlotte D. Rueger, Guy M. Whipple, Jr.

Business Manager GEORGE H. ATHERTON
Credit Manager JOSEPH A. ROTHBARD

J-Hop Issue Bus. Mgr. WILLIAM G. BARNDT

J-Hop Issue Publication Mgr. Lyman Bittman
J-Hop Issue Service Mgr. Willis Tomlinson
J-Hop Issue Advertising Mgrs. Stanley Joffe, John Park, Edward Wohlgemuth.

ASSISTANTS: Donald Bronson, Herbert Falender, John Gustafson, Clayton Hepler.

Stiff Shirts And The J-Hop . . .

IF ANYBODY thought we were through carrying on our editorial battle with the farm and home editors who put out the Michigan State News at East Lansing, Mich., he's barking up a horse of another color.

It is our understanding that the J-Hop up at Lansing is not formal, if you really care to wear your own clothes. There, now, what do you know about that? The idea, it seems, is simply this: The Michigan State gentlemen who are in charge of the Hop, realizing that there was a basketball game just before the dance, figured that many of "the boys" might not be able to rush home after the game in time to get into one of them there gosh-durned store shirts that you wear to formals, so the whole business is optional. It is our guess that something very nice in a brown corduroy, with a hairy sweater, will predominate when Freddy Martin's band plays for the evening's festal doings.

Of course our readers' immediate reaction will follow these lines: Just why in the wide, wide world should anybody want to see the Michigan State basketball team play? They aren't any good, are they?

No, it is true, the Michigan State basketball team isn't much.

The secret is out. One of "the boys" on the State basketball team is a gentleman named Garlock. Mr. Garlock is also the boss of the State J-Hop.

Our Library Love Nests . . .

LET'S GO to the General Library and study, dear. While the more somber and, we will add, the more intellectual students were up to their elbows in Plato, calculus, hydraulics, and the Sino-Japanese War, the delicately muralled walls of the main reference room of our Library were softly echoing the whispered "I love you too, dearests" of the moonburned lovers who persisted in substituting "study" for their usual evenings at the Bell, the Parrot, or the Union.

Like Al Smith and the Liberty League, we must view with undisguised alarm rather than "point with pride" at what we consider the regrettable intrusion (going on with our Constitutional idea) of our rights of privacy with our books, which we love.

We are firm believers in Sex, with a capital "S." Don't get us wrong. But the young men and women who came into the Library, draped their coats and hats over ours, "read" for a minute or two, and then launched into the holding of hands and (God forbid!) even the soft humming of a few bars of "I'm in the Mood for Love," were definitely a social menace.

We attribute our 'C' in Modern Drama to the Library Lovelorns and their soft "Do you really and truly, darlings?" After all, who can hope to adequately grasp "Hedda Gabler" and Strindberg and Maeterlinck by the horns, which is where they must be grasped, when their reference room's air is perfumed with Love on the Run?

Remember, spring and bock beer and the Arboretum will soon be here. There's a time and a place for everything. Please, Love Dust advocates, let us alone when it comes time for June finals!

THE SCREEN

PREVUE OF THE MAJESTIC
"IF YOU COULD ONLY COOK"
(Saturday Through Tuesday)

"A grand-new, brand-new love team" is what the publicity items claim is in store for the J-Hoppers at the Majestic Theatre, which is bringing Herbert Marshall and Jean Arthur for a Saturday-through-Tuesday run in the romantic comedy "If You Could Only Cook."

The film concerns itself with a disgruntled millionaire who allows a strange but very attractive girl (did you have a blind date for the Hop, too?) he meets on a park bench to coax him into going with her to answer an ad for a domestic couple. He becomes butler and she a maid.

Marshall, who is already well-known as a stage and screen star, made his talking picture debut in 1929 with Jeanne Eagles in "The Letter." Miss Arthur, who in her blonde way is quite a tasty dish, once modelled for Howard Chandler Christy, the noted artist.

PREVUES OF THE MICHIGAN
"STARS OVER BROADWAY"
(Thursday Through Saturday)

"Stars Over Broadway," Warner Brothers' new musical comedy drama, which will be shown at the Michigan Theatre through Saturday for the first time locally, takes the audience behind the scenes of broadcasting stations and night clubs in what is said to be one of the most entertaining and tuneful pictures in recent months.

The romances of radio stars, the struggles and tribulations of aspiring songbirds, their rise to success and their consequent downfall is presented in "Stars Over Broadway." Action, comedy, catchy songs and the usual "spectacles" are all knit into the production.

An all-star cast, including James Melton, famed radio singer, Pat O'Brien, Jane Froman, Jean Muir, Frank McHugh, and Frank Fay lend their talents to the Michigan's musical. Melton and Miss Froman play their real-life roles of radio entertainers; O'Brien and Miss Muir play opposite each other in the romantic leads; and McHugh is cast as a song plugger. Busby Berkeley and Bobby Connolly, two of the country's better known dance directors, have their fingers prominently in the pie.

SUNDAY THROUGH WEDNESDAY
"CEILING ZERO"
(Sunday Through Wednesday)

First National Pictures is reported to have placed every facility of its Hollywood studios at the disposal of Director Howard Hawks and assigned two of the films' most competent male stars to head the list of 20-odd major players for the filming of "Ceiling Zero," a drama of the air lanes.

The players are James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, who had teamed in "Here Comes the Navy," "Devil Dogs of the Air" and "The Irish in Us." Supporting them are Stuart Erwin, eccentric comedian, June Travis, Craig Reynolds, former leading man for Mary Pickford, Carlyle Moore, Jr., and Barton McLane.

Through an arrangement, sanctioned by the U.S. Postoffice Department, the United Airlines, Inc. loaned the studio airport space and 40 airplanes, including a number of Boeings, Northrops, and Lockheed models. Equipment borrowed to authenticate the airmail and passenger service background, including innumerable dispatch forms, weather reports, weather maps, stewardess' hampers, radio earphones, head sets, mail bags, and so on, have aided the producers in preserving the utmost in cinematic veracity.

Reviewers in the metropolitan newspapers have been unstinting in their praise of "Ceiling Zero." We are taking the chance — but it seems a safe chance — of unhesitatingly recommending "Ceiling Zero" as the best of the J-Hop week-end fare.

THE FORUM

He Should Leave School . . .

To the Editor:

This is a hard luck story — without doubt the most tragic you have ever heard.

I am an Italian by birth, my father and mother coming to America when I was six years old; so I was brought up to speak the Italian language. My folks know very little English (Dad works in a restaurant specializing in Italian foods and has no need for English) and so we at home speak only in our native tongue.

Looking for a "pipe" last September, (since I had a heavy schedule, of course) I enrolled in an Italian 31 class, having already taken Italian 1 and 2 for "pipes" my freshman year.

I FLUNKED ITALIAN 31.

Why? I COULDN'T SPEAK ITALIAN AND TRANSLATE IT WELL ENOUGH TO SUIT THE INSTRUCTOR — MY FOLKS SPEAK A DIALECT!

Then, last night while I was listening to the radio and reading an Italian newspaper my father sent me, I received a long distance call from my father.

He asked me in Italian: "How did you come out in your grades, son?"

And I replied: "I got 4 B's and an E, dad."

"An E in what?"

And then I answered — in Italian: "In Italian, dad."

I am leaving school next semester.

—R.A.C., '37.

'QST' AMATEURS! RADIO BUGS! SET BUILDERS!

RADIO PARTS FOR EVERY JOB.
ALL POPULAR RADIO MAGAZINES

PURCHASE-RADIO
Phone 8696 "W8RP" 331 South Main

IF YOU WRITE WE HAVE IT . . .

A Large and Complete Stock of All Leading Makes in a Complete Range of Prices.

TYPEWRITERS - FOUNTAIN PENS
CORRESPONDENCE STATIONERY
STUDENT AND OFFICE SUPPLIES

O. D. MORRILL
The Stationery and Typewriter Store
Since 1908 314 SOUTH STATE ST. Phone 6615

When Your Clothing Is Styled by Saffell & Bush It is CORRECT in Every Detail.

Saffell & Bush
State Street :: Ann Arbor

