Sororities Trade Ideas On Various Problems

When sorority presidents met last spring at the Panhellenic Interfraternity Council Greek Week House Presidents' Conference, they decided it would be beneficial to continue informal meetings throughout the year.

The group held three meetings exchanging ideas concerning house problems. They decided to discuss a special topic at each meeting including scholarship, housing and annex problems, alumni, and community relations.

Discussions were also held on relationships with other houses and officers within their own houses, ways to support campus activities, and a small evaluation of rushing.

Meetings are rotated each time with a different sorority president acting as hostess. The informal basis of meeting has resulted in better insight into other organizations. They hope to continue this group on a monthly basis in the future.

South Quad

Throughout the academic year 1954-55, South Quad Council sponsored various activities.

"Noel Moderne," their annual Christmas formal was held Dec. 11. The Council installed a new television set and provided for the upkeep of WCBN, South Quad, the Photography Club and the amateur radio station.

The Council also sponsored four Sunday Musicales featuring student talent and gave an honors dinner for those whose averages were above 3.5.

They also gave the final banquet for those here for the Big Ten Residence Halls Conference and will give a banquet for outstanding athletes toward the end of the semester.

West Quad

Sound proof music practice rooms and a quad newspaper were recently added to West Quad through the efforts of the West Quad Council.

The quad added two committees, House Services and Activities to its government.

The Council sponsored two dances this year, the Winter Holly Hop and a spring dance.

West Quad house presidents began meeting with the quad council president to establish more effective cooperation between the units.

The distribution of reaction sheets at the end of council meetings for the members to present criticism was instituted this year to encourage improvement in subsequent meetings.

The dining room rotation plan, which allows men's houses to eat with Chicago House every two weeks, was put into effect.

The quad government gave financial support to the Radio Station, Ham Club, Camera Club, and Strauss Library. The council also participated in the Big Ten Residence Halls Conference and established a permanent dining room study hall and a loan fund.

Junior Panhellenic

According to former president of Junior Panhellenic Association, Carol DeBruin, '57, the major undertaking of the organization last fall was its flag sale.

Cooperating with members of Junior Inter-Fraternity Council, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Panhellenic pledges sold flag kits to Ann Arbor residents. A profit from the sale totalling $1,060 went toward building an Ann Arbor Community Swimming Pool.

Since the president of Junior Panhel is elected in February, Miss DeBruin was replaced in February 1955 by Molly Dwan, '58.

Other officers who were elected in September, 1954 are:

Jan Tinkham, '58—Vice-President,
Joy Pasternak, '57—Secretary
Virginia Royal, '57—Treasurer

MARCHING BAND—Judged one of the finest of its kind in the country, the Marching Band thrills football fans with its formations and drills.

OUTSTANDING GROUP:

IFC Receives Class B Trophy

Michigan's Inter-Fraternity Council received the national Class B trophy as the outstanding group in its class during the year.

It came as a tribute to the hours of work put into the organization by its staff and members.

During the year, a co-operative food buying plan modeled after that used by Pennsylvania State University was inaugurated. Trial periods given the plan indicated it may grow in the future into a successful system.

At present the IFC is working towards eliminating bias clauses in the remaining few fraternities here which have them.

Glee Club

The sixty voice University Men's Glee Club hopes to climax the year with a European tour.

The tour, which is still subject to the approval of the SGC, will include concerts in most of the free countries of Europe.

Other projects of the organization during 1954-55 were tours through Michigan and a southwestern trip in which the Glee Club sang in St. Louis, Memphis and other southern cities.

Sponsoring Jazz at the Philharmonic and the Fred Waring Concert were also activities of the organization.

Joint concerts with Ohio State Men's Glee Club and with Michigan State Men's Glee Club were participated in by the singers.

Officers

Gordon Ferguson, '57, President
Richard Maier, '55, Vice-President
George Dutter, '55 BAd., Business Manager.

Panhellenic Association

New officers for Pan-Hellenic Association are Debby Townsend, '56, president; Jane Germany, first vice president; Marcia Galmas, second vice-president; Barbara Frey, '56BAd., secretary; Peggy Hubbard, '56, public relations chairman; Jean MacRea, '56Ed., treasurer; Nancy Jacquette, rushing chairman and Carol DeBruin, '57, rushing counselor.

The same officers were previously held by Jean Brumfield, '55, Barbara Heider, '55, Virginia Abbey, '55, Becky Ninness, '56, Marlene Jaffa, '55, Jeralee Fox, '55, Margie Spindler, '55Ed., and Debby Townsend, '56.

Highlights of the year's activities are Pan-Hel Ball, Greek Week and individual pledge formals.

Engineering Council

The College of Engineering Council consists of Charles Stickels, '55E, President; Keith Coats '56E, Vice-President and Jere Brophy '55E, Secretary-Treasurer.

Members-at-Large are Santo Pontiicello '58E; William Diamond '56E and David Burchfield '56E.

University Bands

The University Marching Band and the University Symphony bands participated in several concerts during the 1954-55 year.

After performing at all Michigan football games and making two football tours to Northwestern and to Ohio State, the University Marching band divided into the Wolverine Band and the Symphony Band.

The Wolverine Band played at the Michigan home basketball games and gave several concerts.

The Symphony Band participated in Varsity Night and Lantern Night, played several concerts in Ann Arbor and throughout the state.

Tours were made to Des Plaines, Sturgis, South Bend and Elkhart where the group played for the American Bandmaster's Association.

A second tour was made throughout Ohio, New York and Massachusetts. This tour was climaxed with performances at Symphony Hall, Boston and Carnegie Hall in New York.

The band hopes to end the season with a Pop Concert to be held on the Diagonal in the spring.

East Quad Sees Finish Of 'Operation Ransom'

Since September, the East Quad Council has sponsored numerous activities and projects.

According to president Ralph McCormick, '57E, the orientation program, consisting of parties designed specifically for Quad residents, was the most successful ever presented.

The Council sponsored the Quad level homecoming display contest, win by Hayden House.

McCormick termed the Christmas formal "The Snowflake Ball," "very successful."

Inter-Coop Council

A coordinating body for seven student operated co-ops, the Inter-Cooperative Council is a corporation owning more than $100,000 worth of property.

The seven co-ops function as independent units renting their houses from the ICC.

Their latest innovation was the conversion last semester of one of the three women's houses, Harold Osterweil, to a residence for graduate women. The experiment was considered successful and ICC officials agreed to continue it next year.

Purchase Brandeis House

Interior renovations in the ICC newest purchase, Louis D. Brandeis House for married students, were completed last semester. The outside of the house is currently being brightened by the addition of a new roof and new siding.

ICC, which foots the bill for permanent improvements in property estimates the cost of the new Brandeis exterior at $2,000.

As a group co-ops came out with a higher grade point average last year than either dormitories or fraternities and sororities. Combined average for the three women's houses was 2.8, for the three men's houses, 2.57.

Heading the ICC this year were: Stefan Vail, Grad., President

Tell Housing Breakdown

More students live in dormitory housing than in any other residence as a group.

More men live in private dwellings than anywhere else, as a group.

In a breakdown of student residences for last Fall's semester, consideration went to nine categories. This totalled 17,416 students (11,951 men and 5,465 women).

Thirty-six per cent or 6,353 students lived in dormitories (3,356 men, 2,996 women).

Out-of-Dorm Statistics

Private dwellings accounted for 33 per cent with 4,959 men and 848 women.

Fraternities and sororities totaled nearly 14 per cent with 1,700 men and 709 women.

Commuting students numbered 976 men and 182 women for nearly seven per cent.

Nearly three percent (140 men, 345 women) lived at home.

Just under two per cent, 342 women, liven in League Houses.

Cooperatives accounted for under one percent (143 men, 61 women) as did the University Terrace apartments (226 men).

About two-and-a-half per cent (449) of the men are listed under miscellaneous (apartments).

In addition, there were 1,306 students listed as "off campus" graduate enrollment (704 men and 602 women).

A nearly eight to two ratio exists of married to single students with 13,674 men and 3,742 women.

Sororities Trade Ideas On Various Problems

When sorority presidents met last spring at the Panhellenic Interfraternity Council Greek Week House Presidents' Conference, they decided it would be beneficial to continue informal meetings throughout the year.

The group held three meetings exchanging ideas concerning house problems. They decided to discuss a special topic at each meeting including scholarship, housing and annex problems, alumni, and community relations.

Discussions were also held on relationships with other houses and officers within their own houses, ways to support campus activities, and a small evaluation of rushing.

Meetings are rotated each time with a different sorority president acting as hostess. The informal basis of meeting has resulted in better insight into other organizations. They hope to continue this group on a monthly basis in the future.

West Quad

Sound proof music practice rooms and a quad newspaper were recently added to West Quad through the efforts of the West Quad Council.

The quad added two committees, House Services and Activities to its governments.

The Council sponsored two dances this year, the Winter Holly Hop and a spring dance.

West Quad house presidents began meeting with the quad council president to establish more effective cooperation between the units.

The distribution of reaction sheets at the end of council meetings for the members to present criticism was instituted this year to encourage improvements in subsequent meetings.

The dining room rotation plan, which allows men's houses to eat with Chicago House every two weeks, was put into effect.

The quad government gave financial support to the Radio Station, Ham Club, Camera Club, and Strauss Library. The council also participated in the Big Ten Residence Halls Conference and established a permanent dining room study hall and a loan fund.

Junior Panhellenic

According to former president of Junior Panhellenic Association, Carol DeBruin, '37, the major undertaking of the organization last fall was its flag sale.

Cooperating with members of Junior Inter-Fraternity Council, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Panhellenic pledges sold flag kits to Ann Arbor residents. A profit from the sale totalling $1,060 went toward building an Ann Arbor Community Swimming Pool.

Since the president of Junior Panhel is elected in February, Miss DeBruin was replaced in February, 1935 by Jane Dodd, '35.

Other officers who were elected in September, 1934 are:

Jan Tinkham, '36—Vice-President,

Joy Pasternak, '37—Secretary

Virginia Royal, '37—Treasurer

OUTSTANDING GROUP:

IFC Receives Class B Trophy

Michigan's Inter-Fraternity Council received the national Class B trophy as the outstanding group in its class during the year.

It is same as a tribute to the hours of work put into the organization by its staff and members.

During the year, a co-operative food buying plan modeled after that used by Pennsylvania State University was inaugurated. Trial periods given the plan indicated it may grow in the future into a successful system.

At present, the IFC is working towards eliminating bias clauses in the remaining few fraternities here which have them.

University Bands

The University Marching Band and the University Symphony bands participated in several concerts during the 1934-35 year.

After performing at all Michigan football games and making two football tours to Northwestern and to Ohio State, the University Marching band divided into the Wolverine Band and the Symphony Band.

The Wolverine Band played at the Michigan home basketball games and gave several concerts.

The Symphony Band participated in Varsity Night and Lantern Night, played several concerts in Ann Arbor and throughout the state.

Tours were made to Des Plaines, Sturgis, South Bend and Elkhart where the group played for the American Bandmaster's Association.

A second tour was made throughout Ohio, New York and Massachusetts. This tour was climaxed with performances at Symphony Hall, Boston and Carnegie Hall in New York.

The band hopes to end the season with a Pop Concert to be held on the Diagonal in the spring.

East Quad Sees Finish Of 'Operation Ransom'

Since September, the East Quad Council has sponsored numerous activities and projects.

According to president Ralph McCormick, '37E, the orientation program, consisting of parties designed specifically for Quad residents, was the most successful ever presented.

The Council sponsored the Quad level homecoming display contest, win by Hayden House.

McCormick termed the Christmas formal "The Snowflake Ball," "very successful."

Inter-Coop Council

A coordinating body for seven student operated co-ops, the Inter-Cooperative Council is a corporation owning more than $100,000 worth of property.

The seven co-ops function as independent units renting their houses from the ICC.

Their latest innovation was the cooperative last semester of one of the three women's houses, Harold Osterweil, to a residence for graduate women. The experiment was considered successful and ICC officials agreed to continue it next year.

Purchase Brandeis House

Interior renovations in the ICC parent purchase, Louis D. Brandeis House for inserted students, were completed last semester. The outside of the house is currently being brightened by the addition of a new roof and new siding.

ICC which foots the bill for permanent improvements in property estimates the cost of the new Brandeis exterior at $3,000.

As a group co-ops came out with a higher grade point average last year than either dormitories or fraternities and sororities. Combined average for the three women's houses was 2.8, for the three men's houses, 2.57.

Heading the ICC this year were: Stefan Vail, Grad., President

Arthur Wilner, '36, Vice-President.

Dorothy Hinrichs, '36Ed., Secretary

Ruth Kiessel, '36, Accountant

Hal Boyle, Grad, Maintenance Director

John Moynan, Grad., Alumni Chairman

Tell Housing Breakdown

More students live in dormitory housing than in any other residence as a group.

More men live in private dwellings than anywhere else, as a group.

In a breakdown of student residence for last Fall's semester, consideration went to nine categories. This totalled 17,416 students (11,901 men and 5,465 women).

Thirty-six per cent or 6,352 students lived in dormitories (3,556 men, 2,996 women).

Out-of-Dorm Statistics

Private dwellings accounted for 33 per cent with 4,959 men and 848 women.

Fraternities and sororities totaled nearly 14 per cent with 1,700 men and 709 women.

Commuting students numbered 976 men and 1,832 women for nearly seven per cent.

Nearly three percent (146 men, 345 women) lived at home.

Just under two per cent, 242 women, lives in League Houses.

Cooperatives accounted for under one percent (143 men, 61 women) as did the University Terrace apartments (228 men).

About two-and-a-half per cent (449) of the men are listed under miscellaneous (apartments).

In addition, there were 1,306 students listed as "off campus" graduate enrollment (704 men and 602 women).

A nearly eight to two ratio exists of married to single students with 12,674 men and 3,742 women.

"Operation Ransom"

"Operation Ransom," the planning of which goes back five years, is the Quad's important renovation project. It comprises the remodeling of the Quad Basement to house a library, music practice and lounging rooms and the East Quad studios of WCBN, Campus Broadcasting Network. "Ransom" was completed this semester.

Two other projects are the installation of additional bike racks, recently completed, and the scholarship program.

The Council-sponsored spring formal was held in the court on May 14.
