TALKED WITH NEW YORK.

The Inaugural Test of the Long Distance Telephone in Ann Arbor a Success.

Yesterday afternoon a number of professors and newspaper representatives were present at the inauguration of the long distance telephone in Ann Arbor. Among those present, besides the representatives of the Argus, Register, Courier, U. of M. Daily and Times, were Pres. Angell, Sec'y Wade, Major Soule and Prof. Carhart.

The test was a most satisfactory one, as the conversation, over a thousand miles of wire, was more distinct than in the local service. Conversation was had with New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and Port Huron. One newspaper man was confronted with the following question: "Have you eveh talked with New Yawk befoah," and being unfamilliar with Yankee dialect, was taken somewhat by surprise, much to the gratification of all present.

Wisconsin Willin'.

The question of another joint debate between the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin is again being considered at the former institution. The debate last year was not as successful as was expected owing to a disagreement in conditions under which the debate was to take place. The literary societies of the University should consider the matter of a debate this year, and if it is thought desirable to have such a debate, the conditions should be arranged in accordance with the wishes of both sides as far as possible.—Daily Cardinal.

That Sophomore Election.

There has been trouble in the camps of '96. One of its warriors, who, but shortly, smoked the pipe of peace in the retirement of his teppee, has put on war paint, and is now a decidedly "bad injun." It appears that the cause of the trouble was an article in one of Detroit's evening papers, which stated that a certain prominent member of '96 was an ardent candidate for class president. Now, when it is known that the man who occupies this chair has generally the honor thrust upon him and that it is the custom to make the unfortunate both "president and his vice," the humor of the situation may be appreciated. The man who wrote the article, one of the best known correspondents in college, is in hiding, and the "candidate" was down town last night whooping things up in a lively manner. At last reports, he was tracking the correspondent to his lair.

The Inland League.

The opening entertainment of the Inland League will be given at the Church of Christ, on Monday evening at 8 o'clock p. m. Prof. H. L. Willett, A. M., will deliver his celebrated lecture on Savonarola, and Miss Alice Bailey, of the University School of Music will sing several beautiful solos. Prof. A. A. Stanley will play the accompaniments. This is a good opportunity to hear a good lecture and listen to some sweet music at a very low price. The admission at the door is ten cents. Season tickets admitting to the entire course of 20 evening are on sale at various places in town at $1:00.

Junior Laws Meet.

The junior laws met immediately after the quiz yesterday and transacted some important business. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved, the report of the committee on constitution and by-laws was read. This committee submitted the constitution, handed down from year to year by the preceeding class which was unanimously adopted. A committee of three was next appointed to select a class motto and colors. After some little debate on parliamentry rules, it was decided to hold an election for the chosing of class officers, four weeks from next Saturday, at 9 o'clock.

Courtney Will Remain.

The $1,200 necessary to retain Trainer Courtney, at Cornell, will probably be secured, $936 having been obtained day before yesterday. If Courtney stays, a launch will probably be purchased by the navy, like those Harvard and Yale have.

FOOTBALL AT CORNELL.

Prospects are the Most Flattering for a Successful Year.—Good Team Work.

C. M. Johanson, coach at Cornell, gives the Cornell Sun the following review of football prospects in that college. He says that, considering the men they have lost, the promise of success this year is very bright.

Captain Barr, who plays right tackle, is playing, as usual, the strong, steady game which his physique and endurance would warrant one in expecting. At full-back, Young. who is a strong tackler and interferer, is playing well. Curtis, as of old, is playing well at end, while Daley, who is gritty and willing, is the best man at the end.

Warner, at left guard, Johanson predicts, will compare favorably with any guard of the season. Although he at times needs stirring up, he always proves himself a terror to the opposing rush line. Mason and Bachman have about even chances at quarter.

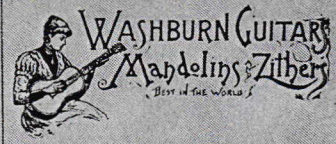

Robbins, the last of the old men, will do well at maintaining the reputation at half that Osgood gained at Cornell; and Freeborn, a new man, although poor at interference, stands best chance for the other half.

Hall, at tackle, bids fair to be one of the best men in the line, and will hold his own with the star tackler of the best teams. At right guard, Krantz, although a new comer, gives promise of a very successful career.

Center rush is the position which is now causing great perplexity. Unless Wagner, last year's center, returns, Gallagher will probably get the place, though altogether too light.

Women's League.

The first regular meeting of the Women's League will be held in the chapel, Saturday, Oct. 14, at half past three. President Angell and Mrs. Prof. Thomas will speak. Every college girl, of whatever department, is cordially invited to be present at the meeting. A short informal social will follow the addresses.
